Important Online Payment System Notification. Glendale's online payment system will be unavailable on Saturday, Oct. 16, from 10:30 - 11:30 p.m. for regularly scheduled maintenance. This affects all online payments including utility billing, court-related fine and traffic payments.

Glendale PD Showcases New Technology. U.S. Congressman Ed Pastor recently had a firsthand look at how funding he sponsored is being used by the Glendale Police Department to equip patrol cars with new video technology.

Thanks to a $940,000 federal appropriation in 2008, Glendale will be the first municipal police department in the valley to utilize in-car video technology in its full fleet of patrol cars. By February 2011, more than 100 patrol cars will have in-car cameras.

The dash-mounted cameras capture visual and audio recordings that can prove useful for crime prevention and during investigations resulting in:

- Improved prosecution rates with video evidence of incidents
- Officer protection, as recording interactions can be a deterrent to hostile behavior toward officers during a stop
- Improved officer training with use of real-life scenarios captured by the new in-car cameras.

The camera system purchased with the federal appropriation was chosen as the most officer-friendly and intuitive. In addition to cameras on the dashboard, it utilizes microphones in the patrol car and on officers. The system can be activated with the push of a single button or, in some cases, it will be automatically triggered when officers turn on their patrol lights.

Once activated, the camera will capture sound and image from 30 seconds before the trigger, throughout an incident, and for another 45 seconds after it has been deactivated. The pre-record, actual incident, and post-record is captured as a single file without gaps.

Digital data captured by the cameras can be stored for up to 10 years when it is tagged to be retained for use in criminal prosecution.

Glendale Spotlights Value of Library Services. In money-strapped times, one of the best recession-buster strategies a family can employ is to look at their spending and see how much they could save by using their city library for everything from books, music and games to online tutoring and other little-known library services. In Glendale, librarians estimate a family of four can save approximately $4,000 a year.

This savings has prompted the City of Glendale to shine a spotlight on its three public libraries during Cities & Towns Week, Oct. 25-29. Click here to see how even moderate use of Glendale's public libraries translates into big savings.
